PREFACE

This third edition of the Subject Index to Books for Intermediate Grades—like the second edition, which was published in 1950—is designed as a reference tool to be used by classroom teachers and librarians in identifying books that have value as teaching materials for Grades 4–6. In selecting the some 1800 books that are indexed, emphasis has been placed on trade books, because trade books contain some of the best informational writing available for children today, and they tend to have greater appeal for children than do most textbooks. Textbooks have been included only when necessary in subject areas where the coverage by trade books was not considered adequate.

Not all of the good material available in trade books for use at the intermediate level could be included. Much good fiction that would be used in an individualized reading program has been omitted, and only those fiction titles included that have a specific subject value or a specific type appeal, i.e., stories with settings in other countries, humorous stories, mystery stories.

New subject headings have been added in the Subject Index to meet the changing needs of classroom teaching, and some older headings have been revised to fit modern terminology. For example, the heading INTERNATIONAL UNDERSTANDING has been added, covering fiction that gives a picture of present-day life in countries other than the United States. The heading CHARACTER EDUCATION has been changed from a main heading to a cross reference to specific aspects of character education, as FEAR—OVERCOMING; RESPONSIBILITY; SELF-CONFIDENCE. In general, the headings follow the form used in Children's Catalog and Sears List of Subject Headings. When it was necessary to list subjects not yet included in these two tools, reference was made to standard courses of study for terminology that would most nearly fit classroom needs.

In the List of Books Indexed, publisher, price, and grade level (in parentheses) are given for each title, followed by a simplified Dewey Decimal number or the abbreviation "Fic" for Fiction. Thus the user can quickly distinguish between fiction and nonfiction titles and, for nonfiction, can identify the general area into which a book fits. Collections of short stories are identified by the letters "S C." The numbers are not intended as an aid in cataloging but are given merely as a convenient indication of general subject areas. The prices given were current at the time of compilation but are subject to change. All titles were listed as in print in the 1961 Books in Print.

All of the books indexed are recommended titles; there is no indication of first purchase. Order of purchase within any subject area should be based on the needs of the individual library rather than on any general assignment of rank to the books.

In the Subject Index, the grade levels for titles are given in the right-hand column. An asterisk by the grade level indicates that the material is presented in a fictionalized form. Asterisks were not used for titles under headings that are obviously fiction, such as MYSTERY STORIES; FANCIFUL TALES—MODERN; or FOLK TALES (used as a subheading).

The grade levels given are geared to the intermediate grades, Grades 4–6. A book graded as 6 indicates fairly difficult material that could be used with accelerated readers in all three intermediate grades. Books graded 5–6, 4–6, or 4–5 are for the average reader in the intermediate grades, although 5–6 obviously would be somewhat more difficult than 4–6 or 4–5, and 4–5 would be somewhat easier than 4–6 or 5–6. A book graded as 4 would be easier than one graded 4–6 or 4–5.

In listing the books, the author's name has been given as it appears on the title page. In like manner, pseudonyms of famous people have been retained as subject headings. Thus, Johnny Appleseed is listed under APPLESEED, JOHNNY, with a cross reference from Chapman, John. BUFFALO BILL is used as a main heading, with a cross reference from Cody, William Frederick.

In selecting books to be indexed, no attempt was made to index collections of folk and fairy tales or of poetry, since both of these categories are adequately handled in special subject indexes. In a few instances where folk materials are included in collections of stories or in books about other countries, these have been indicated by the subheading FOLK TALES under the names of individual countries. The heading FANCIFUL TALES—MODERN refers to modern stories of fantasy as contrasted with the traditional folk and fairy tales.

It is hoped that this revised edition of Subject Index to Books for Intermediate Grades will prove a useful tool in aiding teachers and librarians to make a wide use of books in supplementing and enriching both teaching and individual reading programs.
